OCTOBER MORE JEWISH HUMOR

- A little Jewish boy was telling his mother about how he had won a part in a play that was being done at school.

His mother asked, "What is the part you will play, Saul?" Saul responded, "I shall play the Jewish husband," to which the mother replied, "Well, you go right back to that teacher and tell her that you want a SPEAKING part!"

- Just before Yom Kippur, a team of terrorists invades the shul and takes the Rabbi, the Cantor and the shul president hostage. Hours later, the governor stands tough; he won't give a million dollars, nor a getaway car nor a jumbo jet. The terrorists gather the three hostages in a corner and inform them that things look bad and they're going to have to shoot them. Nevertheless, to show that they're not really a bad bunch, they'll grant each hostage one wish.

"Please," says the Rabbi, "for the last two months I've been working on my Rosh Hashanah sermon. What a waste to die now without having carried it before an audience. I'll go happily if you let me recite my sermon. It is two and a half hours long, tops." The terrorists promise to grant the wish.

"Please," says the Cantor, "after 50 years I've finally gotten the Hinneni prayer just right. What a waste to die and not sing it to an audience. It's only about 45 minutes long, then I'll go happily." The terrorists promise to grant the Cantor his wish, too, and they turn to the shul president.

"Please," says the president with tears in his eyes. "Shoot me first!"

- Moishe is driving in Jerusalem. He's late for a meeting and looking for a parking space but can't find one. In desperation, he turns his face upwards and says, "Lord, if you find me a parking space, I promise that I'll eat only Kosher and will respect Shabbat and all the holidays."

Miraculously, a space opens up just in front of him. He turns his face back up and says, "Never mind, I just found one!"
